FOR THE WEB DESIGNER & DEVELOPER

The Book Launch Company.

Everything you need to design and build our website: positioning, sitemap, page-by-page blueprint, draft copy, visual direction and technical requirements.

CLIENT

The Book Launch Company
Founder: Ariba (@whynotnovels)

SISTER BRAND

Pages of Pandora
pagesofpandora.com

QUALITY BAR

Premium new-media agency
(reference: atomikgrowth.com)

OVERVIEW

A website that makes an author feel their book is in the best hands in the world.

The Book Launch Company is a content and launch agency for authors. We launch new books, revive older titles, and build authors' personal brands and podcasts through creative, social-first campaigns. The website has one job: turn a curious author into a booked call, by proving — fast and visually — that we make books impossible to scroll past.

PRIMARY GOAL

Booked discovery calls

Every page ends in one clear action: book a call.

AUDIENCE

Authors, publishers & literary agents

Indie, debut and established authors worldwide; small & overseas publishers.

FEELING

Premium, editorial, alive

The polish of a top agency, with the energy of BookTok and Bookstagram.

What's in this brief

01 What we learned from our current site, pagesofpandora.com

02 The quality bar: what makes Atomik Growth feel premium

03 Brand positioning & voice

04 Visual direction

05 Sitemap

06 Homepage blueprint, section by section, with draft copy

07 Service pages

08 Case studies (the most important template on the site)

09 About / Founder page

10 Contact & booking flow

11 Technical, SEO & performance requirements

12 What we will supply, timeline & sign-off checklist

Items marked TBC are numbers or assets we will confirm before launch. Please design with realistic placeholders so the layout works with the real figures. All draft copy can be refined by your copywriter, but please keep the structure and tone.

01 · LESSONS FROM OUR CURRENT SITE

Pages of Pandora: what to keep, what to fix.

We reviewed every main page of pagesofpandora.com (Home, About, Services, Testimonials, Contact). It's a solid foundation: clear niche, clean navigation, agency-grade language. But it hides its biggest asset and leaves trust signals on the table. The new site must not repeat these gaps.

Keep — these work

WHAT	WHY IT WORKS · CARRY IT OVER
Single-niche focus	"100% literary & publishing" makes us the specialist, not a generalist. Keep the focus on authors only.
Engagement process	The "scoped per title, no preset tiers" explanation and the 3-step "What happens next" on Contact reduce anxiety. Reuse the pattern.
Response-time promise	"Typical response time: two business days" is a small but strong trust signal. Keep one (ideally faster).
Named testimonials with photos	Real names and headshots beat anonymous quotes. Keep, and upgrade (see below).
"Who we work with" segments	Authors / agencies / overseas publishers is a smart split. Keep it as a section on the new homepage.
Legal pages in footer	Privacy, Terms and Refund Policy signal a real business. Keep all three.

Fix — do not repeat these on the new site

#	ISSUE FOUND	WHAT THE NEW SITE SHOULD DO INSTEAD
1	The founder is invisible	Ariba and @whynotnovels (50K+ followers) only appear inside client quotes. On the new site the founder is a headline feature: homepage section, full About page, live follower count, link to Instagram.
2	Gmail contact address	pagesofpandora1@gmail.com undercuts a premium brand. Use a domain email (hello@ / launch@ our domain) everywhere.
3	No social links anywhere	An Instagram-native agency with no Instagram link in header or footer. Add Instagram, TikTok, YouTube, LinkedIn icons in the footer and an Instagram link in the founder section.
4	Results without labels	Campaign cards show figures like "111K" and "2,357" with no unit (likes? saves? shares?). One card is titled "Will Continue To Monitor", which reads like an internal note. Every number on the new site must carry a label and a timeframe.
5	No real case studies	The "Impact" area is a gallery of posts, not stories. The new site needs full case studies: the book, the brief, the creative idea, the results (see Part 08).
6	"Hover to reveal" inclusions	Service inclusions sit behind a hover state, which doesn't exist on phones — and most authors will arrive from Instagram on a phone. Show inclusions openly or in a tap-to-expand accordion.

7	Contact form friction	A field labelled "Website" sits above Full Name (if it's a spam trap, hide it properly from users and screen readers). The "Objectives & Budget Range" label promises a budget question that isn't there. No calendar booking. New site: no budget question at all, clear labels, embedded Calendly / Cal.com.
8	SEO / sharing metadata	Every page's og:url points to the homepage; the Testimonials title repeats the brand twice; we couldn't find a share image (og:image). New site: unique title, description, URL and share image per page.
9	Testimonials lack context	No book covers, vague labels ("Author Partner"), and one quote reads like a reply pulled mid-conversation. New site: book cover + author photo + genre + the result achieved, with the quote kept short and clear.
10	Clunky hero stat	"13,000,000+ Active Readers Reach" → write numbers the way people say them: "13M+ readers reached".
11	No FAQ	Authors' common questions (timing, genres, guarantees, what we need from them) go unanswered. Add an FAQ. Note: no pricing or budget signals anywhere on the new site — cost is discussed on the call.

02 · THE QUALITY BAR

Why Atomik Growth feels premium — and how we translate it for authors.

Atomik Growth is a content and distribution agency for tech companies and VCs (podcasts, launch videos, clipping). We want the same level of confidence and polish. Please study the site for structure and craft — do not copy its copy, imagery, illustrations or layout pixel-for-pixel. Our brand should feel literary, not like a tech startup.

1 · A category-defining one-liner

Their hero positions them as the "new media arm" of their clients in a handful of words, then names the services in one line. → Ours: one bold sentence about what we are for authors, one line listing what we do.

2 · Proof before persuasion

Right after the hero: "100+ companies" and links into case studies, before any sales talk. → Ours: a strip of book covers we've launched, immediately under the hero.

3 · Big, labelled numbers

A dedicated "by the numbers" band with three huge stats, each with a one-line label, animated counting up on scroll. → Ours: reach, authors launched, countries, founder audience.

4 · Services shown as live results

Each service card includes a product-like UI widget (views delivered, progress bars) rather than generic icons. → Ours: each service card shows a phone mock-up playing a real Reel with its view count.

5 · Case studies with hard metrics

Homepage features two case studies with a 4-metric grid each, alongside a client testimonial. Case study pages break results down by platform. → Ours: identical depth (see Part 08).

6 · Founder-led content as credibility

They run their own podcast and link it from the homepage — they practise what they sell. → Ours: Ariba's @whynotnovels is our living portfolio. Feature it.

7 · One CTA, repeated

"Book a call" sits in the nav, hero, services, and the closing band — always the same words, always to a calendar. A gentle "we may have a waitlist" adds scarcity. → Ours: same discipline.

8 · FAQ that removes objections

Short, practical answers on turnaround, time commitment, platforms and differentiation. → Ours: timing, genres, guarantees, what we need from the author.

Where we deliberately differ

- Warmth over sci-fi. Atomik uses dark space/astronaut imagery. We use paper, ink, book covers and real reader content — editorial and human.
- Light-first. A warm paper-white base with dark "ink" sections for rhythm, rather than an all-dark site.
- Video is the hero. Our work is short-form video, so the site should move: muted autoplay Reels in phone frames throughout.

The new-media launch partner for authors.

> Publishing has changed. Readers discover books on their phones now — in Reels, on BookTok, on Bookstagram, in podcasts. We are the team that puts your book there, and makes your name worth following.

Positioning statement (internal)

For authors who want their book to be read — not just released — The Book Launch Company is the content and launch agency that combines a founder-led reader community of 50K+ with creative, social-first campaigns, so every launch has a story, an audience and momentum that lasts beyond launch week.

Tagline options for the hero (pick one)

HEADLINE	WHY
Launch the book. Build the author.	Recommended. Covers both halves of the business (launches + personal brand) in six words.
The new-media launch partner for authors.	Closest to the Atomik-style category claim; clear and confident.
Books deserve a launch, not a listing.	Sharper, more provocative; good as a section headline if not the hero.

What we do — four pillars

01
Book Launches

Pre-launch hype, launch-week waves and post-launch momentum for new releases.

02
Backlist Revival

Repositioning older titles with new hooks, new video and new readers.

03
Author Brand & Content

Done-for-you content strategy and short-form video that grows the author, not just one book.

04
Author Podcasts

Launching and growing author podcasts: production support, clipping and distribution.

Voice

We sound like

- A confident editor who also lives on Instagram
- Specific: tropes, comps, formats, numbers
- Warm toward authors, never salesy
- Short sentences. Strong verbs.

We avoid

- Vague hype ("maximum engagement", "synergy")
- Promising sales or bestseller status
- Unlabelled numbers
- Claiming "best in the world" without proof — let the numbers and case studies say it

04 · VISUAL DIRECTION

Editorial ink & paper, with a spark of launch energy.

Think of a beautifully designed literary magazine that suddenly starts playing video. Lots of whitespace, big serif headlines, real book covers, and phone-framed Reels as the main imagery. These are starting points — please propose a refined direction in your moodboard.

Colour (proposed)

Ink	Paper	Bone	Launch	Stone
#121115	#F6F1E8	#ECE4D6	#FF5A36	#7D766B
Text, dark bands	Main background	Cards, panels	CTAs, numbers, accents	Secondary text

Use the accent sparingly: buttons, key numbers, one highlighted word per headline. Check all text combinations for WCAG AA contrast (white on #FF5A36 at small sizes may need a darker shade for buttons).

Typography

Launch the book.

Headlines: an editorial serif with character (e.g. Fraunces, Lora, Editorial New, GT Sectra). Use italics for emphasis words.

Build the author.

Body & UI: a clean grotesk (e.g. Inter, Satoshi, General Sans). Numbers in the serif, very large.

Imagery & motion

- Phone-framed Reels (muted, autoplay, looping, with poster frames) are the primary visual. Real campaign work only.
- Book covers as a recurring motif: cover walls, a scrolling marquee of launched titles, covers beside every testimonial.
- Ariba: professional editorial portraits (not selfies) plus behind-the-scenes shots filming content.
- Motion: subtle and confident — numbers counting up, cover marquee, cards lifting on hover, page-turn style reveals. Respect "reduced motion" settings.
- No stock photos of people holding generic books, no clip-art icons, no AI-generated imagery of books.

Logo

We need a wordmark for "The Book Launch Company" and a compact monogram for favicon, social avatars and video watermarks. If logo design is in your scope, please present 2–3 directions; otherwise we will supply it. TBC

05 · SITEMAP

Ten pages at launch, built to grow.

Home

Services
Overview
· Book Launches
· Backlist Revival
· Author Brand & Content
· Author Podcasts

Work
Case study index (filter by service & genre)
· Individual case studies (CMS)

About
Founder story (Ariba / @whynotnovels)
Team · How we work

Book a Call
Calendar booking + short form
· Thank-you page

For Publishers & Agencies
Multi-title & translated-edition campaigns

Testimonials
Video + written, with book covers (CMS)

Journal (phase 2)
Launch playbooks, trend notes — SEO engine (CMS)

Legal
Privacy · Terms · Refund policy · Cookie notice

Navigation

Header	Logo · Services (dropdown with 4 pillars) · Work · About · For Publishers · Book a call . Sticky, shrinks on scroll. Mobile: full-screen menu with the CTA pinned at the bottom.
Footer	Short brand line · domain email · social icons (Instagram, TikTok, YouTube, LinkedIn) · service links · company links · legal links · newsletter sign-up (optional) · © line.

Sister brand

Pages of Pandora continues as our reader-facing review and feature brand. Decide with us whether the new site links to it (e.g. "Our reader community: Pages of Pandora") or keeps it separate. TBC

06 · HOMEPAGE BLUEPRINT

Eleven sections, one story: we make books impossible to scroll past.

Order matters. Proof comes early, the founder appears before the sales pitch, and every section points to the same call to action.

01 Hero

Left: headline, sub-line, two buttons, micro-proof line. Right: two or three overlapping phone frames playing real campaign Reels.

DRAFT COPY

Launch the book. Build the author.

Book launches, backlist revivals, author brands and podcasts — creative, social-first campaigns from the team behind @whynotnovels.

Book a call | See our launches

Trusted by authors across X countries · X M+ readers reached

02 Cover wall / marquee

Slow, infinite horizontal scroll of covers we've worked on (greyscale → colour on hover). Small label above it.

DRAFT COPY

Books we've launched and brought back to life

03 By the numbers

Dark "ink" band. Three or four giant serif numbers counting up on scroll, each with a one-line label.

DRAFT COPY

13M+ readers reached through our campaigns · X + authors launched across X countries · 50K+ followers on Ariba's @whynotnovels · X M views on our top campaign

04 The problem

Short, editorial. Sets up why we exist.

DRAFT COPY

Great books don't sell themselves anymore.

Readers now find their next book in a Reel, a creator's stack, a podcast clip. A launch without content is a whisper. We make it a moment.

05 Services — four pillars

Four large cards (2×2 desktop, stacked mobile). Each: number, title, one line, three bullets of what's included, a looping Reel or mini result widget, "Learn more →".

DRAFT COPY — SECTION HEADLINE

Everything a book needs to be found.

06 Featured case studies (2)

Each: book cover + author, result-led headline, 2-line story, 4-metric grid, short author quote with photo, "Read the case study".

EXAMPLE FORMAT

How [Book] reached 1.4M views in launch month

Views · Saves & shares · New followers for the author · Timeframe

07 Meet the founder

Large portrait of Ariba, short story, live-feeling Instagram stats, 3 embedded @whynotnovels Reels, link to profile.

DRAFT COPY

Built by a reader the internet listens to.

Ariba built @whynotnovels into a community of 50K+ readers and millions of monthly views by making books feel unmissable. The Book Launch Company brings that instinct — and that audience — to your book.

Follow @whynotnovels

08 How it works

Four horizontal steps with a progress line.

DRAFT COPY

1 · Discovery call — we learn the book, the reader, the goal. 2 · Campaign plan — format mix, creative hooks, timeline. 3 · Create & launch — we produce and roll out the content. 4 · Report & grow — clear results and what to do next.

09 Who we work with

Three tabs or cards: Authors (debut, indie, established) · Publishers · Literary agents. Reuse the good segmentation from Pages of Pandora.

10 Testimonials + FAQ

Written testimonial carousel, each with author photo and book cover. Then an accordion FAQ — see suggested questions below.

11 Closing CTA band

DRAFT COPY

Your book has a launch day. Let's make it a launch.

Book a 20-minute call. We take on a limited number of launches each month.

Book a call

Suggested FAQ

How early should I come to you?	Ideally 8–12 weeks before release; we also run campaigns for books already out. confirm
Do you work with self-published authors?	Yes — indie, traditionally published and publishers.
Which genres?	List our strongest genres. TBC
Can you guarantee sales?	Honest answer: no one ethically can. We guarantee the work, the reach plan and transparent reporting.
What do you need from me?	The book (or ARC), a short call, and — for brand/podcast work — about an hour a week.

07 · SERVICE PAGES

One template, four pages.

Each service page uses the same structure so it's easy to build in a CMS and easy for authors to compare.

Template

#	SECTION	CONTENTS
1	Hero	Service name, one-line promise, Reel in phone frame, "Book a call"
2	Who it's for	3 short "this is for you if..." bullets
3	What's included	Visible list (no hover-only content), grouped by phase
4	Timeline	Visual phase timeline (e.g. –8 weeks → launch → +4 weeks)
5	Proof	1–2 related case studies + 3 example Reels with view counts
6	FAQ	3–5 service-specific questions
7	CTA band	Same closing band as homepage

01 · Book Launches

Promise: Turn release day into a moment readers can't miss.

Phases: Pre-launch — cover reveal, teaser Reels, creator/ARC outreach, pre-order push. Launch week — short-form video wave, influencer collabs, author interview feature. After launch — book club discussions, digital book tour, sustained content.

02 · Backlist Revival

Promise: Your older books still have readers waiting. We find them.

Includes: repositioning around tropes and comps, fresh hook-led video, creator waves, tie-ins to trends, seasonal moments and new releases in the series.

03 · Author Brand & Content

Promise: Become an author readers follow — not just a book they bought.

Includes: content strategy and pillars, scripting, filming guidance, editing, captions, posting calendar, profile optimisation, monthly reporting. Retainer service.

04 · Author Podcasts

Promise: Launch the show, then turn every episode into weeks of content.

Includes: show concept and format, launch plan, episode editing support, short-form clipping, guest booking, distribution across Instagram, TikTok, YouTube and podcast platforms. confirm scope

For Publishers & Agencies page

Same template, written for a business buyer: multi-title campaigns, coordinated rollouts around publication calendars, translated and international editions, reporting suitable for stakeholders. Add a "Request a proposal" CTA alongside "Book a call".

08 · CASE STUDIES

The template that sells the agency.

This is the single most important template on the site. Atomik's strongest pages are case studies with a result-led headline and platform-by-platform metrics. Ours need the same rigour — plus the book itself as the hero visual. Build it in the CMS so we can add new ones without a developer.

#	BLOCK	CONTENTS & RULES
1	Headline	Result first: "How [Book] reached 1.4M views and [outcome] in [timeframe]". Never a vague title.
2	Meta chips	Author · Book · Genre · Service · Timeline · Country
3	Hero visual	Book cover on a coloured background + phone frame with the best Reel
4	The brief	2–3 sentences: where the book was and what the author wanted
5	The idea	The creative angle: tropes, hooks, formats, why it would work
6	What we did	3–5 numbered steps with small visuals
7	Results	Big metric grid (4 numbers, each labelled with unit + timeframe), then results by platform (Instagram / TikTok / YouTube). Optional: ranking, review count or sales signal if the author permits.
8	Top pieces	3 embedded Reels with views / likes / comments
9	Author's words	Written quote + author photo + book cover
10	Next	"More launches" (3 related cards) + CTA band. Share buttons + "Download PDF" version.

Case studies we'll provide at launch

Minimum 4, ideally 6, covering at least one of each: new launch, backlist revival, author brand/podcast. Candidates from existing work (pending author permission and full numbers): BookStagram Gallery feature — 1.4M views Kristi Fuentes Losey — author spotlight Highlanderess feature Johnny Gnall Egle Sivak

Testimonial component

Author photo · name · book title + cover thumbnail · genre · one-line result ("120K views in 3 weeks") · quote (2–4 lines max, edited for clarity with the author's approval).

09 · ABOUT / FOUNDER

Ariba is the brand's unfair advantage. Show her.

Clients in our testimonials talk about Ariba by name — her care for the book, her eye for video. That trust should be designed into the site, not discovered by accident.

Page structure

1. Hero — editorial portrait, headline, one-paragraph story.
2. Founder story — how @whynotnovels began and grew to 50K+ followers and millions of views; what she learned about why readers pick up a book. Ariba to supply
3. @whynotnovels proof strip — follower count, average monthly reach X, top Reel views X, 3–6 embedded Reels.
4. What we believe — 3–4 principles, e.g. Readers, not impressions · Every book has a hook · Content that sounds like the author · Honest reporting.
5. Team — photos + roles (editors, video, strategy, partnerships). TBC
6. Press / features / partners — logos if any. TBC
7. CTA band.

DRAFT HERO COPY

We started as readers. Now we launch books.

The Book Launch Company was founded by Ariba, the creator behind @whynotnovels. After years of turning books into conversations for a community of 50K+ readers, she built a team to do the same for authors everywhere — from debut novelists to established names reviving their backlist.

10 · Contact & booking flow

Primary path: book a call directly (embedded Calendly or Cal.com, 20 minutes, author's local time zone shown automatically). Secondary path: short inquiry form for those not ready to book.

FORM FIELD	NOTES
Name · Email	Required
I am a…	Author · Publisher · Literary agent · Other
What do you need?	Multi-select: Book launch · Backlist revival · Author brand & content · Podcast · Not sure yet
Book title & genre	Plus optional link (Amazon / Goodreads / website)
Release date	Date picker, with "already published" option
Anything else?	Optional free text

- After submit: thank-you page with "What happens next" (3 steps) and a reply-time promise, plus an automatic confirmation email from our domain.
- Submissions go to our inbox and a simple CRM (HubSpot free, Notion or Airtable). choose
- Spam protection: invisible honeypot or Cloudflare Turnstile — never a visible stray field.
- Also show: domain email, Instagram DM link, and WhatsApp click-to-chat (optional).

11 · TECHNICAL REQUIREMENTS

Fast, findable, editable by us.

AREA	REQUIREMENT
Platform	Your recommendation. Options: Framer or Webflow (we can edit everything ourselves) or Next.js + headless CMS such as Sanity (maximum control; Pages of Pandora and Atomik both run on Next.js). Whatever you choose, our team must be able to add case studies, testimonials, Reels, covers and stats without code.
CMS collections	Case studies · Testimonials · Books (cover wall) · Reels (video + views) · Team · FAQs · Stats (editable numbers) · Journal posts (phase 2)
Video	Host on Mux, Cloudflare Stream or Vimeo (not raw files in the site build). Muted autoplay loops with poster images, lazy-loaded below the fold. Avoid heavy Instagram embeds on key pages — use native video with a "View on Instagram" link.
Performance	Mobile Lighthouse ≥ 90 for Performance, Accessibility, SEO. Largest Contentful Paint under 2.5s on 4G. Images in WebP/AVIF with responsive sizes.
Mobile first	Most visitors will arrive from Instagram on a phone. Design mobile layouts first; no hover-only content; tap targets ≥ 44px; CTA always reachable.
SEO	Unique title, meta description, canonical URL and share image (og:image 1200×630) for every page and every case study. Schema markup: Organization, Person (Ariba), Service, FAQPage, Article. XML sitemap, robots.txt, clean URLs (/work/book-name). Target terms such as "book launch marketing", "book marketing agency", "BookTok marketing for authors", "author podcast production".
Analytics	GA4 or Plausible + Meta Pixel + TikTok Pixel. Track events: Book-a-call clicks, completed bookings, form submits, case-study reads, outbound Instagram clicks. Google Search Console set up.
Accessibility	WCAG 2.2 AA: contrast, alt text on covers, captions on videos with speech, keyboard navigation, reduced-motion support.
Legal & privacy	Privacy, Terms, Refund policy, cookie consent banner (we serve EU/UK clients). Form consent line.
Email & domain	Domain email (Google Workspace or similar) with SPF/DKIM/DMARC so replies don't land in spam. Domain: TBC
Integrations	Calendly/Cal.com · CRM · newsletter (Beehiiv, Kit or Mailchimp, optional) · WhatsApp link
Handover	Admin access in our name, a short Loom walkthrough of the CMS, and 30 days of post-launch fixes.

12 · ASSETS, TIMELINE & SIGN-OFF

What we'll send you, and how we'll judge "done".

We will supply

- [ ] Logo files (or brief for logo design)
- [ ] Professional portraits of Ariba + BTS photos
- [ ] 20–40 book covers (high-res) with author permission
- [ ] 15–30 best Reels (MP4 originals) with view counts
- [ ] 4–6 case studies: brief, idea, numbers, screenshots
- [ ] 5–10 written testimonials with author photos
- [ ] Verified stats: total reach, authors, countries, top campaign
- [ ] Founder story, team bios, FAQ answers
- [ ] Social links, domain, email, Calendly account

Suggested timeline

Week 1	Kick-off, moodboard, 2 visual directions
Week 2	Wireframes: Home, Service, Case study, About
Weeks 3–4	High-fidelity design, desktop + mobile
Weeks 5–6	Build, CMS set-up, integrations
Week 7	Content load, QA, speed + SEO checks
Week 8	Launch + handover

Please send your own estimate; this is a guide.

Sign-off checklist

- [ ] "Book a call" is visible in the header and at the end of every page, and the booking flow works on mobile.
- [ ] Every number on the site has a label and a timeframe; stats are editable in the CMS.
- [ ] Ariba / @whynotnovels appears on the homepage and has a full About page.
- [ ] At least four case studies are live using the full template.
- [ ] No content is hidden behind hover; all pages are checked on iPhone and Android.
- [ ] No pricing, budget or cost signals appear anywhere on the site.
- [ ] Every page has a unique title, description, URL and share image; schema validates.
- [ ] Domain email is used everywhere; social icons link correctly.
- [ ] Mobile Lighthouse scores ≥ 90; videos lazy-load with posters.
- [ ] Analytics events fire for bookings and form submits; Search Console is connected.
- [ ] Our team has added a test case study in the CMS without help.

Questions? We'd rather answer them early.

Contact: Ariba, Founder · The Book Launch Company · email TBC · instagram.com/whynotnovels